Code Passed the Legis- lature Monday

CITIES UNDER 50,000 TO HAVE SMALL BOARDS

Governor Has Vetoed the Pool Selling Bill.

TURNED THE CLOCK HANDS BACK

So As to Make It Appear Noon When the Legislature Ends—Much Horse Play in House.

Columbus, O., April 25.—The house today passed the Senate compromise school code bill which provides for small boards in cities under 50,000.

Ever since noon the clock has been turned back and it now looks as if the legislature would not adjourn till about 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Members of the House are this afternoon indulging in a lot of "horse play." Books are being tossed about, paper wads thrown and members are on desks throwing paper wads and acting like school boys while the teacher is out.

Columbus, O., April 25.—The Ohio general assembly will adjourn sine die today. During the past week the upper and lower branches have been deadlocked on the proposed school code. An agreement was reached by which the code will be passed before adjournment. Despite the governor's recent message urging economy, appropriations in excess of $12,000,000 for the ensuing two years have been made. None of the proposed new revenue measures having been passed, the state is facing a probable deficit of $1,000,000.

Governor Herrick worked until nearly midnight Saturday upon bills passed by the legislature the preceding week. When he had completed the list under consideration the measures approved filled a waste basket, something near 100 in all.

Some of the important measures approved were the Silberberg bill, requiring all theatres to be equipped with either steel or asbestos curtains; the Treadway measure, providing for the maintenance of the police and firemen's pensions funds; and the measure providing for the appointment of court stenographers by the judges of the common pleas courts.

Other bills were: The Ricketts bill, set aside public grounds for art buildings; the Bronson bill, empowering city councils to assess the cost of street cleaning against the property owners; the Lehmann bill, providing against the pollution of streams; and the Carr bill, permitting the detention of inmates of the girls' industrial home until the age of 21 years.

The bill, which requires all the state and county officials to give surety company bonds, was also signed. The bill was much opposed in the senate because of the provision which required the administrators of estates valued at more than $2,000 to furnish a bond of this character.

A number of bills affecting the public service corporations were also signed. One provides that gas companies may engage in electric lighting and that electric lighting companies may furnish artificial gas; another provides when councils fix the price of gas or electric lighting and the companies accept, council may not change the price for ten years.

One measure that will prove popular with the old soldiers provides that county commissioners may furnish memorial tablets for the graves of soldiers, sailors or marines.

The Treadway bill, providing for juvenile courts, was signed.

Governor Herrick will veto the Chisholm pool selling bill. The measure has been held unconstitutional in an opinion rendered the governor by Attorney General Ellis and he will disapprove of it summarily. Unless vetoed today it will become a law without his signature.

The bill is held to be special legislation for the reason that it provides for the legal selling of pools under certain specified conditions and in certain designated places, while providing that such sale will be unlawful elsewhere and at other times.

It is also probable that there will be other instances wherein the veto power will be exercised. Under the provisions of the Hypes bill it is made clear that townships may be divided into election precincts and new election precincts created under certain conditions.

VICE ADMIRAL AVELLAN, RUSSIA'S MINISTER OF MARINE.

Russia's minister of marine corresponds to the secretary of the navy of the United States. Vice Admiral Avellan, who not long ago succeeded Vice Admiral Tiroff, is at present acting minister, the nominal commander in chief being the Grand Duke Alexis Alexandrovich. A most difficult task confronts Vice Admiral Avellan, that of re-entrenching the shattered Port Arthur fleet.

RIOTERS

To the Number of 23 Killed and Forty Wounded in a Clash Near
Gross-Wardein

Budapest, April 25.—A serious riot is reported to have taken place at the market town of Fiesl, near Gross-Wardein, resulting from a collision between the meetings of the Socialist and Independent parties. While order was being restored by the gendarmes a Socialist fired a revolver, killing the commander. The gendarmes thereupon fired a volley, killing 23 of the rioters and severely wounding 40. The military were summoned from Gross-Wardein.

Franchise Case.

Washington, April 25.—The Supreme court of the United States today decided the case brought to test the constitutionality of the Virginia election laws aimed at the disfranchisement of negroes. The action was to restrain the board of canvassers from canvassing the returns. The cases were dismissed and the franchise law stands. As a result the work of the Virginia constitutional convention which practically disfranchises the negro must stand unless it can be successfully attacked in some other way.

BRYAN OPPOSES JUDGE PARKER

Hires a Hall and Makes Speech at Chicago.

Assails New York Democratic Platform and Uses it as Argument
Against Parker's Nomination

Chicago, April 23.—Before a crowd which filled the Second regiment armory William J. Bryan spoke out his disapproval of David Bennett Hill, Judge Alton B. Parker and the recently adopted New York platform.

Mr. Bryan declared that he would not take sides with any particular candidate for the honor of carrying the banner of Democracy in the coming battle of national ballots, but he did not say he would not take sides against a particular candidate and he did not deviate from his expressed purpose. Mr. Bryan said in part:

"As it is somewhat unusual for a political speech to be made as this one is, let me preface my remarks with an explanation. I have hired this hall and I introduce myself because I do not care to speak under the auspices of any club or organization which is committed to any particular aspirant for office. My concern is not about the name or the personality of the nominee, but about the principles for which the Democratic party is to stand. While many of the papers seem to assume that the contest for the Democratic nomination is necessarily between Mr. Hearst and Judge Parker and that every Democrat must either be for one or the other, such a position is illogical and without foundation. Those who are classed as reorganizers—and by that I mean those who would carry the party back to the position that it occupied under Mr. Cleveland's administration—are not entirely agreed among themselves as to the proper candidate upon whom to concentrate their votes, and so those who are in sympathy with the spirit of our recent platforms may differ as to the relative availability of those who represent the progressive element of the party. My own position is one of neutrality. I regard as available all candidates who are in favor of making the Democratic party an honest, earnest and courageous exponent of the rights and interests of the masses and I regard as unavailable all who are in sympathy with, or obligated to, the great corporations that today dominate the policy of the Republican party and seek, through the reorganizers, to dominate the policy of the Democratic party. I have no favorites among those on our side and no special antagonism to those who represent the reorganizers. I believe that the line should be drawn between principles, not between men, and that men should only be considered as they may be able to advance or retard progress of Democracy."

"When the Cleveland boom was launched, I pointed out the objections to his candidacy, and now that Mr. Parker seems to be the leading candidate (though not the only candidate) among the reorganizers, I desire to present some reasons why he cannot be considered as an available candidate for a Democratic nomination, and I find these reasons not in his personality, but in his position upon public questions. For a year he has been urged to speak out and declare himself upon the important issues of the coming campaign, but he has remained silent.

"Whatever doubt may have existed on this subject heretofore, has been dispelled by the platform adopted by the New York state convention, and taking this platform as a text I am sanguine enough to believe that I can prove to every unbiased mind that Judge Parker is not the man to be nominated by the Democratic party.

"If any who are present tonight, or who read what I say, think that I am trying to interfere with Democratic success, let me answer that no Democrat is more anxious for the party to succeed than I am.

"No one has suffered more from disensions and divisions in the party and no one, I believe, is more eager for the country to enjoy the great benefits which a triumph of real Democracy would bring. But I do not desire that the party shall win offices only. If that is the only purpose of the party, let its principles be abandoned and let its platform simply declare the party hungry for the patronage. The lesson of 1894 shows the folly of hoping to win by a surrender to the corporations, but even if success could be bought in such a way it would not be worth the price.

"No one can defend the Democratic party without defending its principles, and its principles ought to be so clearly set forth as to be easily understood. We ought to appeal to the conscience of the public and arraign Republican policies as hostile both to the principles of free government and to the principles of morality. We have an opportunity to make the Democratic party a power in this country, not only a power, but a power for good. Let us array the party against every abuse of government and against every policy that is hurtful to the people. Let us make Democracy stand not only for good government—for honest government—but for a government 'of the people, by the people, and for the people.' And the first step in this direction is the adoption of a platform that recognizes the right of the people to decide public questions as well as their capacity for understanding public questions. To present a platform which is evasive and ambiguous shows that those who write the platform either distrust the people who are to act upon it or have purposes that they desire to conceal.

The New York platform is ambiguous, uncertain, evasive and dishonest. It would disgrace the Democrats of the nation to adopt such a platform, and it ought to defeat as an aspirant for a Democratic nomination any man who would be willing to have it go forth as a declaration of his views on public questions."

MACHINE

Used to Turn Negroes White Was Burned and Half-Cured Patients
Are in a Predicament

Philadelphia, Pa., April 25.—A fire, which destroyed the laboratory of Dr. Thomas A. Eldridge left six negroes in what might be called "germatological suspense." Dr. Eldridge has been making a series of experiments, the aim of which is to turn negroes white. Dr. Eldridge was doing the bleaching by throwing a X-ray light through radium, thereby destroying the pigment of the skin. Six negroes who have undergone the treatment are partially white and the destruction by fire of the apparatus has halted the process of "whitewashing" and it will be months before a duplicate apparatus can be rebuilt. The negroes are unhappy because their friends tell them they look like "human checkerboards."

London, April 25.—A Port Arthur dispatch reports the complete strengthening of all defenses on land and sea, and in that in consequence thereof the city is deemed impregnable. Confidence has been restored to the people remaining, who are entertained daily with band music while the children play about the streets although a state of siege were no anticipated. The entrance to the harbor remains open, despite the sinking of the Japanese fireships.

WOMAN'S WORK ENDANGERS HEALTH

Why Mothers and Housewives Are So Often Weak and Miserable

Cooking, cleaning, caring for the children. Never a change; always the same dull monotony of housework. Is it any wonder women look old and worn when they are still young in years? Is it any wonder their shoulders begin to stoop, their eyes grow dull and their faces careworn?

If Rexall Mucu-Tone had been planned and compounded to meet the needs of a certain class of people it would not have filled the requirements of these women more fully than it does.

Working and worrying, day in and day out, year after year, is sure to affect the organism of the body. The change is so slow that no one notices it taking place. But some day the wife or mother realizes that she isn't feeling as she used to. The work she formerly did with ease now makes her very tired. She feels weak and dizzy and suffers with frequent dull headaches. Sometimes her back aches. Her husband tells her she is "run down" and then she begins taking a "tonic."

The tonic strengthens her somewhat—temporarily—but there is a cause for her weakness and suffering and this must be cured before she can hope for health. The tonic does not cure anything.

If this woman had consulted an experienced catarrh specialist he could have told her that she was suffering from a catarrhal congestion of the mucous membranes brought on by her confined life, a lack of outdoor exercise, and a bad condition of the blood.

Mucu-Tone is all right. It is good medicine. I have been greatly troubled with catarrh and have tried various remedies. The disease seemed to affect me in the ears and throat. It has been very annoying and has caused me considerable discomfort and anxiety. I was so relieved by the Mucu-Tone that I look that I shall get a larger supply of it and use it thoroughly. One of my relatives was also benefited by this medicine so I can say that it is good medicine. Mrs. Frank Decker, 15 Warren St., Utica, N.Y.

Rexall Mucu-Tone will give weak women new life and a new fund of energy; fill their arteries with rich, red blood; make their eyes bright and their flesh firm and elastic. More than this, it will give them a clear complexion such as no cosmetics could possibly produce.

Mucu-Tone does this by cleansing the mucous membranes, by driving out all the catarrhal poisons, and by restoring to the mucous cells their natural, healthy functions. It is also a powerful, nutritive, flesh-building medicine.

We want every woman in this city to know that in Rexall Mucu-Tone she will find immediate relief from all weakness, dizziness and pain, and in order to show how sincere we are—how absolutely certain we are that this remedy will do all we claim for it, we make this remarkable offer:

Buy a bottle of Rexall Mucu-Tone today and take a tablespoonful three times a day. If you do not feel better from the very start; if three or four weeks' treatment does not make you feel like a new woman—strong, and well, and full of life and vigor—bring back the empty bottle and we will refund your money.

A Professor, a Flirt And Another Girl

[Original.]

Professor Martin, a young scientist, taught a class of girls at Miss Rufford's school three times a week for one hour a day. He never began his lecture without blushing and stammering, but when he once forgot the battery of eyes leveled at him he ceased to flounder and warmed to his subject.

"Girls," said Kate Doughty one day after lecture, "I'm going to make love to 'Marty' (the professor's sobriquet). 'What for?' asked Celia Thurston.

"For fun."

"Try it, Kate," said one.

"Don't," said another. "He'll faint."

"Don't you think you'd better be studying up for examinations?" asked Miss Thurston.

"Oh, Celia, you make me tired! You're too serious for this world. I shouldn't have said anything about this matter before you. You'll go to Marty and give me away."

"I would have a perfect right to do so, but I won't."

"Why not, if you think a little fun such a sin?"

"Because if he is so stupid as to be gulled by you he is not worth saving from the misery you may cause him."

"I don't mean to cause him any misery. I want to give him a lesson in love-making. It's just the thing he'll need when he comes to want a wife."

So Kate at the conclusion of the next lecture on solar physics remained in the classroom after the other girls had departed, ostensibly to ask some questions.

"You say, Professor Martin," she said, casting her eyes down demurely, "that the heat of the sun makes us, builds up our bodies, gives us the heat we need. Does it make the heart beat?"

"Certainly, though we can more readily trace the connection to electricity. It has been demonstrated that the heart pulsates."

"Oh, professor," said Kate, looking up with mock reproach in her eyes. "you're not going to tell me that love is nothing but electricity?"

"Plurts and lady killers know that the most effective way to make love, as well as the safest way, is to look it rather than say it. Out of Miss Doughty's eyes there came a look of tenderness that was intended to appear spontaneous, uncontrolled. How she called up the blush that accompanied it is a mystery, unless indeed it came from a sense of guilt at the part she was playing."

"I was considering the heart as a mechanical contrivance, not as an emblem of affection," replied the professor, apparently oblivious to Miss Doughty's innocent manner of betraying her love for him. "Experiments upon the heart of a frog—"

There was a suppressed titter at the keyhole, where two or three of the girls were listening—the rest had too much sense of honor to stoop so low—but neither the professor nor Miss Doughty heard it.

"A frog is such a cold thing, professor. Surely you wouldn't consider my heart and that of a frog in the same category?"

This was accompanied by another reproachful look which might mean a good deal more than a mild reproof for bringing the frog into the discussion.

"You are mixing the domain of matter and force with that of the soul." The professor persisted in ignoring the girl's love-lorn looks. "With the latter I have nothing to do. If I can help you to understand the subject of these lectures I shall be happy to do so. If you desire points on psychology I would recommend—"

"No, no, professor, you mistake me. All I wanted to know was whether the sun causes our mechanical hearts to beat. The subject of love, I admit, is in quite a different domain, a domain in which I would never think of consulting one so—so unsympathetic."

The professor had assumed a very decided tone, and Miss Doughty's last words were a final effort to break through his reserve. He stood leaning on his desk waiting. Miss Doughty had persisted in leading him away from his legitimate subject, and he did not encourage her to remain longer. She gave him one glance and saw that she had been defeated. Then, with a cold "thank you," she left the room.

For the rest of the term Miss Doughty, who was very much disgruntled at her ill success in making a fool of Professor Martin, was dubbed by her schoolmates "the frog hearted Miss Doughty." This annoyed her excessively, but something she began to notice during the last week before vacation worried her. The professor and Miss Thurston were seen frequently together and took no pains to conceal an appearance of an especial interest in each other. Then one day the girls all received invitations to the wedding of Professor Elanathan Martin and Miss Celia Thurston, to take place the day after the graduation exercises.

With flaming cheeks Miss Doughty approached Miss Thurston to apologize for her attack on the professor.

"Oh, that's of no consequence, Kate. You mustn't think ill of Professor Martin. He couldn't very well respond. In the first place, he doesn't know how to flirt, and in the second, being engaged to me at the time of your attack, he had to behave himself. Don't fail to come to the wedding. We shall both expect you."

But Kate found it expedient to leave for home immediately after the graduation exercises. Her look as a flirt was never good. She was jilted three times before she was married, and her husband was the most prosaic of men.

Dr. Richard Strauss, the famous German composer, who is now in this country for the first time, is not in any way related to the noted Strauss family of waltz composers. Indeed, his music is of an entirely different order.

Herr Strauss, who is about forty years old, is the conductor of the orchestra of the Berlin Opera House.

He early showed a genius for music and at the age of six composed a polka.

Dancing Back to Paradise.

"Man gets nearer his lost paradise when he is dancing than at any other time. Men at fifty, sixty, seventy and eighty ought to practice it," said the Rev. Dr. G. Stanley Hall, president of Clark university, in a recent lecture at Boston.

Line up, ancient citizens: jump into the ring!

Put some rozzum on that bow an' make it the fiddle sine!

Throw that holdin' stick away; fling them crutches down!

Age is but a dream in gray: Youth has come to town.

Line up, ancient citizens—brows as white as snow:

Ewing the girls who danced with you just sixty years ago!

Though youth stands laughin' at the door, with rosy cheeks an' bright,

Just dance the old time dance once more, with paradise in sight.

Line up, ancient citizens, in balalaika bands!

The angels drop their flamin' swords an' clap celestial hands:

The gates of paradise swing wide, win back their old reason.

You dance the dedication out an' shake the apples down!

Then line up, ancient citizens, an' let the music ring:

As reckless, as when you reaped the first red rose of spring:

Forget the cold, gray winters, drink joy of all the June—

We're dancin' back to paradise to halala tunes!

How to Make a Fortune In Literature

[Original.]

They had met at Lake George. Now they were on the day boat going from Albany to New York, thinking of the charming days they had been spending in idleness. Seated on camp chairs on the upper deck they enjoyed the scenery and talked of their outing. The man smoked and the woman held a magazine in her lap.

"Tomorrow," said the former, "I shall be back in my office."

"Do you work hard?"

"No; my work is very easy. People who have anything to sell come to me. I only buy what is cheap; therefore I have no trouble in selling it."

"My work, too, is pleasant. I sit in the morning after breakfast in my cozy room by an east window where I get the sunlight and scribble for half a day. In the afternoon I do a little domestic work, then amuse myself."

"What is your line of literary work?"

"Fiction."

"So you are the Irene Buckingham whose story appears in that magazine you are holding so lovingly?"

"It is my first published story," she replied, smiling from her brows to her chin.

"How many times have you read it in print?"

"Let me see. I think it is six"—blushing.

"I must have read my first production in print sixty times."

"You? I did not know you were an author?"

"Not very many people know that."

"You keep modestly in the background. How delightful! Your works go out incognito."

"No; they have usually been published under my own name."

"But I never heard—"

"Of Matthew Briggs?"

"Pardon me; I—"

"Singular, since I have had considerable success. I have made a fortune at literature."

"You surely don't mean that you write this trash that is so profitable?"

"My work has been as good as my talents would produce. I think I can say that it is far above the average."

"You made a fortunate hit—wrote something that was original."

"I wrote several original things, but the more original they were the greater difficulty I found in securing a publisher. One very original bit of mine was published, but I mismanaged the disposal of it and made nothing out of it, though it took like wildfire."

"Do, please, satisfy my curiosity. You say that you have done good, legitimate work which it does not appear, from what you say, has been remunerative; and yet you have made a fortune by it."

"I will give you a brief account of my career. My first productions were in imitation of my favorite author. They were not even accepted. My second were my own peculiar ideas written in my own style. They, too, remained unsold. Finally I made up my mind to write what the people wanted rather than what I wanted. Fortunately there was a field in which I was very much at home. There was plenty of romance in it and this I extracted. I wrote what seemed to please every one, but my productions did not reach the great mass of the public. The result was a failure. At last I found a friend, a partner in a publishing house, who gave me his influence, and the concern published a novel for me."

"I see. This was your chance. How many thousand copies were sold?"

"Two thousand."

"Only two thousand? Surely this could not have made you a fortune or a reputation. By and by you will tell me of some great work of which I have often heard."

"I never wrote another."

"My royalty on my novel was $300. I made a fortunate investment of this money and got what men who have made fortunes declare to be the hardest part of their work—i. e., the first thousand dollars. I lived on little more than nothing and kept turning over my money. Today I am accounted a rich man, all, as you see, made in literature."

"But you could as well have made it in molasses."

"I had no molasses to sell. I had a faculty for scribbling, and this gave me a lump sum. Fortunately I had the good sense not to try to live by literature alone, so that I could invest my little capital. While I was making my living this capital was making money for me. The disproportionate ability between capital and labor to make money is as the sands of the sea to a single grain. Of the million dollars of which I am possessed three hundred millions were made by a very high order of intellectual work and the rest by capital."

"I am disappointed."

"I fear you will be more disappointed if you set your heart on making a large sum without any other assistance save your brain. The brain is simply a lever to put that powerful engine, capital, into operation. If the brain and the muscles, after keeping the body alive and in condition, do this they will do all that should be required of them. The rest is the work of capital."

"But how about authors who make great sums from their works?"

"Tell me about the winners of the first prize in a lottery, and I will respond with something of interest about these literary prize winners."

The Black Sheep of The Kenyon Family

[Original.]

There was a dance at Berwick Station. Miners, railroad employees, cow punchers, anybody, everybody—that is, those who were young—were collected in the dining room of the hotel, the space they occupied having been cleared for them by piling the tables and chairs against the walls. On a porch outside in the moonlight stood a man and a girl. For the girl the mixed assembly had no interest except as a spectacle. The man would have appeared equally refined had it not been for the "plains" apparel he wore and a dissipated look in his face. He was the son of an eastern capitalist and had gone to the bad, which meant in his case that he was a fighting, gambling, drinking spendthrift. Mild mannered when sober and unruffled, he was a very devil when drunk or spurred to fight.

"I have heard that you go back east tomorrow, Daisy," he said.

"I do, Paul."

"And this is the last I shall see of you as a girl. You marry the clergyman this fall?"

"I do."

The man gave a slight shiver.

"You can't feel it more than I do, Paul. You have brought this upon yourself."

"Yes, and on you."

The music within ceased suddenly, revealing the sound of a galloping horse in the distance. It came rapidly nearer, and a man, dashing up before the door, called out:

"The red devils are coming! Broken loose from the reservation! Light out!"

Ten minutes later Daisy and Paul Kenyon were riding for dear life!

Each mounted on a good horse, the girl's skirts fluttering in the wind, the man spurring his own mount and belaboring hers to keep the pace. He knew they could distance an enemy following, but the road they were on joined another a few miles ahead, and there was no telling if they would be cut off at the junction. As they neared it they heard the guttural voice of Indians to their right. Urging on their horses, they cleared the junction, but the Redskins had heard them and gave chase.

The white couple's horses had been using their strength and had it not been that they were of the best stock could not have raced even with the ordinary Indian pony. The savage yells behind added a new vigor, and for a time they gained on their pursuers. One of the braves mounted on a steeter pony than the rest distanced his fellows, and they could hear him coming up on them.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND.

Overwork—Extreme Nervousness. Bad Blood—Neuralgia. For several years I suffered with extreme nervousness, due to overwork in my exacting duties as pressman, and could scarcely sleep at night. I was told of Paine's Celery Compound by a friend, and after taking one bottle received a great deal of benefit. I purchased another bottle and consider my nerves better than they have been for years. I cannot speak too highly of Paine's Celery Compound, and think it one of the world's greatest medicines. J. E. Sanberg, 239 16th street, S., Minneapolis. Ailing Women.

Cincinnati, Aug. 26, 1903.—"I heartily recommend Paine's Celery Compound, as I have used it for several purposes, and keep it constantly in the house. I say—Once used, always used—especially in the case of ailing women."—MISS BESSIE LLOYD, 1251 Russell street. "I Was Sick—Dizzy—Worn Out." North Weymouth, Mass., Dec. 14th.—"Paine's Celery Compound is the best and most effective medicine I have ever taken. I was sick, dizzy and worn out for a long time and unable to attend to business. My blood was in a troublesome condition. I was advised to try Paine's Celery Compound, which I did with pleasing results, and in a short time I was able to return to my business. My blood is greatly benefited. I would advise all who are run down by overwork or who need a blood tonic to take Paine's Celery Compound. They will find that it will be a great benefit to them."—T. outlined stipulations.
Despite this fact, a number of special bills have been passed dividing election precincts, all of which are clearly unconstitutional. The government may not veto these bills inasmuch as they apply harmlessly, but there is a possibility that in order to observe the strict letter of the supreme court's ruling he may wield the blue pencil upon these as well.
So far, none of the bills relieving the treasurers of counties, villages and school districts from losses sustained by the failure of banks, bur-salaries, personal losses, etc., have been signed, but it is probable that these may be signed under the condition that Attorney General Ellis contest the payment of any such claims, by resort to the courts.
THE SCHOOL CODE.
Columbus, April 25.—A report of the conference committee on schools was presented by Senator Hypes immediately after the upper branch convened today. There was a demand for call of the Senate roll and the proceedings were delayed some time. Senator Harrison, who has been a stickler for a big board, said: "This code is exactly what we wanted." Senator Stewart of Cleveland, congratulated himself on the part he had taken in settling the school dispute. He deplored the charges that sinister motives had influenced any one in this matter. The report was adopted by the Senate 26 to nothing.

The Republican Plan of Deception

The Republicans are doing their level best to deceive the people as to the real conditions existing in the business world. They are pouring speeches into Congress for use in the coming campaign, the tenor of which is "stand pat," "all is well," "prosperity is still rampant," despite a few facts to the contrary. They would have the country believe that we are rapidly recovering from the setback to industry which occurred from October last to January, when wage reductions became general, and when nearly half the mills in many industries had to close.

Although there never was more important business for Congress to attend to than at present, in order to bring relief from the tyrannical trusts which have put up prices and increased the cost of living to the highest point ever known, while reducing wages in all directions, yet is the aim and policy of the Republicans to adjourn Congress just as soon as the appropriation bills can be rushed through.

They will then begin to circulate their "stand pat" and "prosperity" speeches, hoping to lull to sleep the great mass of voters and to keep them ignorant of the real facts as to the industrial depression which is on still and which cannot be vanquished, even by Republican rhetoric. The Republicans know that every day they remain in Washington will not only bring to light new scandals in their administration, but that it will add new evidence of the depression which is now running its course. They know that the Democrats hesitate to picture conditions as bad as they really are and that, if Congress adjourns at once, the Democrats will practically be without frankable speeches to offset the frankable prosperity speeches of the Republicans. This, they think, will give them another opportunity to fool the voters of the country, and we are sorry to say many of them are fooled. This accounts, also, for much of their unseemly haste to adjourn Congress.

According to the School Code agreed upon in the conference committee of the two houses of the Legislature cities of the size of Newark will have Boards of Education consisting of not less than three nor more than seven members, to be elected wholly at large. Ward membership of the Board will therefore be abolished in Newark. The new Board will be chosen at the general election this fall.

The dispatch by way of St. Petersburg that 7,000 Japs had been killed in a battle on land turns out to be the greatest fake since the war in the far East began. The Russians have had so many naval disasters that they are badly in need of some sort of a land victory over the Japs. There has been some talk of mediation for peace on the part of other nations, but when the Russians are smarting under so much disgrace and humili-

Gon, a victory on land over the Japs is necessary before any peace talk can be tolerated. Perhaps, though, a reported or alleged Russian victory will suffice if a real one cannot be had to save national honor.

The proposition to bring the body of John Paul Jones from France to this country for interment is one that will be cordially approved by all patriotic Americans. He was the first great hero of our navy, and his deeds are familiar to every school boy. That his remains should have rested so long in an alien land is a reproach which ought to be atoned for as soon as possible.

The Democratic members of Congress are making it uncomfortable for Attorney General Knox and President Roosevelt by the pertinent questions they are asking as to intentions of the administration in the matter of the prosecution of the trusts which are violating the law. They want to know what is to be done in the way of following up and enforcing the decision of the supreme court in the Northern Securities case, so that it shall not be practically a dead letter. They are anxious also to find out why the beef trust suit languishes and why the anthracite coal barons have not been dealt with. It can well be imagined that the administration will be pleased when Congress adjourns and no more of these embarrassing questions can be put in official form.

The testimony of Patriarch Cannon before the Smoot investigating committee has added another black chapter to the records of Mormonism. He admitted that he was married to six wives, having espoused the first two, who were sisters, on the same day, and that he had continued polygamous relations with them all in spite of the civil law and the alleged divine Woodruff revelation. Since the latter he had been what he described as more modest, but this meant only that he had not publicly flaunted his relations before the world. The Mormon hierarchy are certainly a lot of citizens of whom this country can well be ashamed, and it is difficult to see how Senator Smoot can escape the condemnation which his closest associates show by their own testimony they have well deserved.

PUNY CHILDREN

Parents Should Know How to Keep Children Well—Expert Advice by a Newark Druggist.

"We do not wish to blame any of our friends for that which they cannot help, but sometimes when we see delicate and puny children, we cannot help feeling that parents are neglectful," said Frank D. Hall during a recent interview.

"If we could only make all fathers and mothers in Newark regard what we say, especially if their little ones are delicate, how glad they would be afterward. They can make their children strong and well. They can lay a foundation stone in their little lives that will give them joy and happiness in years to come, and they will become strong and hearty men and women, if they will only believe what we say about Vinol and follow our advice."

Remember Vinol contains all the active curative principles taken directly from fresh cods' livers without grease or oil, and its taste is delicious, and that is what gives it such power to assist the stomach of the little ones to properly assimilate the food which they eat. It is the means by which rich, red blood is made; strong bone structure is built; hard, firm, flesh tissue is created, and healthy, sound nerves maintained.

Mrs. Jennie Perso, 165 Newman St., Mansfield, O., says:

"I wish to add a few words of praise for Vinol. My little boy was very much run down so much so that he had to leave school. He really was a mere shadow. I decided to give him Vinol, and he is rapidly gaining flesh. I wish to recommend Vinol to every mother who has puny, ailing children."

Not only for children but for adults do we recommend Vinol as the greatest strength creator and builder of health, without reservation, and stand prepared to refund all money to those who do not find absolute satisfaction in its use. Frank D. Hall, druggist.

GROWING

IS THE NEWARK INDEPENDENT TELEPHONE EXCHANGE.

The Company Leases More Rooms to Provide for the Increase in the Number of Subscribers.

The Newark Telephone company now occupies the entire second floor of the James E. Thomas building on North Third street, over the Weiant bakery, a lease for the rooms that have been used for residence purposes having been signed Saturday afternoon.

The manager's office and book-keeping department will be moved to the north room and the rooms on the south side of the building will be used for the exchange and waiting room with booths for long distance service.

The reason for securing additional room is the growth of the exchange which within a year has more than doubled in size.

A new Farmers' line board is being installed now that will connect about 300 Licking county farmers with the Newark exchange. At the last meeting of the directors an additional section for the switchboard was ordered to provide room in the exchange for 1800 subscribers. The number now exceeds 1500.

GOLD

In Licking County and What the Waverly, Ohio, Courier-Watchman Has to say About It.

The Waverly, Ohio, Courier-Watchman has the following to say of the Licking county gold discovery:

"James D. Corwine called at our office yesterday and gave us the particulars of the recent discovery of a gold mine in a deep ravine, near the city of Newark, Ohio, in which he holds a fourth interest. The discovery was made by George W. Slatter, who went from here to the Klondike country about three years ago, and is back here organizing a company to operate what is known as the Lucky Star Creek mines in that country.

"The discovery of the Newark mine, it seems came about in this way. Mr. Slatter was in Newark recently in the interest of his Klondike mine, and chanced to call on a jeweler of the city who told him that he had been getting all the gold he needed in his business out of a deposit of black sand that was found in a deep ravine near the city. Of course, Mr. Slatter, did not take much stock at first in the story, but on being prevailed upon to visit the ravine he very quickly changed his mind, as he there found a wash of gravel and sand fully thirty feet deep, and extending two miles up the hollow which yields about $250 of pure gold to the ton. Mr. Corwine told us that he was at Newark last week and visited the gold field and says that there is no fake about it at all, and is just as represented. He had a bottle of the sand with him that he had collected in the ravine, and any one could plainly see that it contained a large percentage of the precious metal. Mr. Corwine says that as soon as Slatter satisfied himself that the find was genuine, he formed a company and leased all the land bordering on the ravine. The company consists of G. W. Slatter and J. D. Corwine, of Waverly, Chas. D. Jones, of Zanesville, who was with Slatter in Alaska, and J. E. Stinger, the jeweler, of Newark, who was responsible for the discovery.

"The find has created some excitement throughout Licking county and everybody is hunting for black sand in all the hollows in that region of the country. Prof. Lord of the State University pronounces the discovery a genuine one and says the sand contains not less than $20 of gold to the ton. Who says there is no gold in Ohio? Carry the news to Wiley Austin, over at Newfain."

"I had a running, itching sore on my leg. Suffered torments. Doan's Ointment took away the burning and itching instantly, and quickly effected permanent cure." W. Lenhart, Bowling Green, Ohio.

CHARLES A. PALMER.

Mr. Charles A. Palmer, a well-known and highly respected citizen of Newark, died at his home, 59 Wallace street, on Monday morning at 12:05 o'clock, after an illness of two weeks. He submitted to an operation on Friday last and had apparently rallied from the same, but the exhaustion was too much for a person of his advanced age, he being 67 years old at the time of his death.

The deceased was born July 6, 1837, in Allegheny county, N. Y., and had been a resident of Newark for over 23 years. Besides his widow he leaves five sons and one daughter, being Daniel K., Louis D., Charles E., F. L., Willie S., and Miss Mary Palmer, who is a teacher in the North End building.

At the time of the death of the deceased, he was surrounded by the members of his family, and they have the consolation and knowledge that everything in their power was done to comfort him during his last illness. They also have the satisfaction of knowing that they endeavored to their utmost to return the love and services that had been given him family during his life time. The deceased was an excellent man in every respect, one of nature's noblemen, honest and true, without any of the qualifications that go to make the lives of the others unpleasant.

The deceased was a member of Newark Lodge, No. 623, I. O. O. F., and the funeral will be held under the auspices of that lodge on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. Mr. Locke officiating, and the interment will be made in Cedar Hill cemetery.

The deceased was a member of the First M. E. church of this city, and was known by all with whom he came in contact as a man generous to a fault, as a loving and kind husband and father, and a good brother and friend. His word was his bond. He never failed to listen when duty called. He has now answered the last call and gone to his reward. "To live in hearts we leave behind, is not to die."

LUCIUS SULLIVAN

The funeral of the late Lucius Sullivan, who was killed last Friday, was largely attended on Monday morning, the various orders to which he belonged and a large number of railroad men being present at the services in St. Francis de Sales church.

A strange misfortune seemed to follow Mr. Sullivan, he having been a victim of three accidents before the one which caused his death.

On one occasion he was struck by Parhandle No. 3 at the Fourth street crossing, his skull fractured and several bones broken. At another time in the Zanesville yards the engine on B. & O. 47 was thought to have been fatally hurt, lying unconscious three days, and only the past winter slipped and fell on the B. & O. yards in Newark, and was badly bruised.

FLAVIUS L. HAZLETT.

Flavius L. Hazlett, the well-known ex-policeman of this city, died at the home of Mr. Edward Lippincott on South Fourth street, where he had boarded for some time, at 8:15 o'clock Monday morning after a three weeks' illness of dropsy and heart disease. The funeral will take place on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of his sister, Mrs. J. S. Woodward, 203 West Locust street. The deceased was aged 57 years and was a native of Muskingum county. He leaves five sisters and two brothers. Two of the sisters, Mrs. Scarbrough and Mrs. Woodward, reside in this city. His brothers, Thomas Hazlett, resides in Zanesville.

The other sisters are Mrs. Mary J. Smart, Indianapolis; Mrs. J. W. Wines, East St. Louis, and Mrs. Charles Cessna, of Kansas.

Kings Daughters.

The Silent Circle of King's Daughters and Sons will meet at Dr. and Mrs. McCleery's home tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock.

Rheumatism

Is Not a Skin Disease.

Most people have an idea that rheumatism is contracted like a cold, that the damp, chilly air penetrates the muscles and joints and causes the terrible aches and pains, or that it is something like a skin disease to be rubbed away with liniment or drawn out with plasters; but Rheumatism originates in the blood and is caused by Urea, or Uric Acid, an irritating, corroding poison that settles in muscles, joints and nerves, producing inflammation and soreness and the sharp, cutting pains peculiar to this distressing disease.

Exposure to bad weather or sudden chilling of the body will hasten an attack of Rheumatism after the blood and system are in the right condition for it to develop, but have nothing to do with the real true causes of Rheumatism, which are internal and not external.

Liniments, plasters and rubbing will sometimes reduce the inflammation and swelling and ease the pain for a time, but fail to relieve permanently because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism because it attacks it in the blood, and the Uric Acid poison is neutralized, the sluggish circulation stimulated and quickened, and soon the system is purified and cleansed, the aching muscles and joints are relieved of all irritating matter and a lasting cure of this most painful disease effected.

S. S. S. is a harmless vegetable remedy, unequalled as a blood purifier and an invigorating, pleasant tonic. Book on Rheumatism will be mailed free.

The "Pill City."

A new cognomen has been added to the already wearisome list of nicknames applied to American cities, says the Toledo Blade. Detroit is now the "Pill City." It is said that 70 per cent of the pill product of the United States is manufactured in that city. It has several large drug manufacturing houses and, in fact, does a larger business in that line than any other place in the United States. The word "pill" embraces not only the old fashioned article resembling a shot, but oval, square, flat and every other shape of tablet and pellet. These are not patent medicines, as a rule, but pills made up according to the formulas in the recognized pharmacopoeias and purchased at wholesale by druggists, to be dispensed as physicians' prescriptions.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

Silk chun is used for entire waists as well as for trimmings.

The close hat of cotton cloth in unison with the color of the costume is much in vogue.

Rice cloth is a thin, coarse woven fabric flecked with little white grains resembling rice.

Ribbon roses have been brought to great perfection of form and color and are much worn by well dressed women.

With soft madras waists stocks of the same material are furnished with scarfs which tie in the front with the one loop and two ends.

Petticoats of thin evening gowns are sewed with thick silver or gilt sequins. Seen through the fall of tulle or lace the effect of these little ornaments is much enhanced.

The woman who can tie a bow is on the winning side just now, as these are much affected for hats, neckties and hairdressing. Velvet ribbon is the favorite of the moment.

COTTON'S DETHRONED KING

Daniel J. Sully, Who Made and Lost Millions in a Corner.

Daniel J. Sully, dethroned "king of cotton," whose recent failure caused a sensation that was felt throughout the markets of the world, has had a brief but meteoric career as a cotton speculator. A short time ago Mr. Sully was almost unknown on the New York

DANIEL J. SULLY.

Cotton Exchange, while today his name is familiar wherever the staple is produced or sold.

For years, however, he had made a study of cotton and had familiarized himself with every detail of its growth and sale. This information he gained while traveling as a buyer in the south for a firm of Providence cotton dealers and also as a salesman among the cotton mills of New England.

In December, 1902, Sully appeared in New York. He had conceived the idea of getting up a corner. Taking advantage of the short cotton crop, he formed a pool with two others for the purchase of 500,000 bales of cotton. These three men banded themselves together to lose $500,000 before they quit. They were never called upon to advance as much as a single dollar on account of the speculation, and in March, 1903, they divided almost $2,000,000.

Since then he has successfully managed several other pools, until fate at last overtook him and he went down in a mighty crash.

The famous Leiter corner in wheat six years ago was in many respects similar to Sully's cotton corner. Leiter bought wheat at low as 65 cents per bushel. The short crop in Europe and the Spanish war came along to help him, and on May 10, 1898, he had put the price up to $1.85 per bushel. But he held 35,000,000 bushels when the market slumped, and on June 13 he confessed insolvency.

GERMAN CLEANINGS.

There were 6,000 duels in Germany last year, with a mortality of twenty-two, as shown by official reports.

More than one-third of Berlin's expenditure of 141,000,000 marks last year was for sanitary and educational purposes.

On the German emperor's birthday the inhabitants of Cologne are allowed to cross the Rhine bridge free provided they go on foot. Carriages pay as usual.

Pleasure launches are seldom seen on German rivers or bays on German roads. The implements used on small farms and in some shops are as clumsy as they were a century ago.

The municipal regulations of Berlin insist that refuse, ashes and all that is generally though inaccurately summarized by the term "dust" should be carried through the streets in air tight receptacles.

Mail Order Houses

Merchants Should Meet Them With Advertising

There is a great deal of talk about the mail order houses, but do you know there is not one of them that can honestly say that it can sell goods cheaper than the home merchant? It is not the price that sells the goods, but the plausible reason for the price—a plausible statement. You merchants can beat them out every time. Meet them with the same kind of advertising. The oatmeal business is an illustration of what can be done to make people buy an article they never intended to buy. People were opposed to oatmeal and said it was horse feed. The manufacturer had to present the advantages of its healthfulness, and he invested oatmeal with all the desirable qualities. There is a man in Battle Creek who, it is said, has created a market for corn-cobs, and you people pay more for your Postum Cereal than you do for coffee. A mixture of corn-cobs and sirup is made valuable by virtue of advertising.

An advertisement should show the individuality of the merchant who puts it out. Avoid cleverness. An advertisement which attracts attention to the way it is presented instead of the article advertised is not fulfilling its purposes. Avoid appeal to prejudices. Don't lug in outside matters. The secret of the success of the Spotted Town advertising is that it never loses sight of the idea of cleanliness.—J. L. Mahin of Mahin's Advertising Agency, Chicago.

What the Advertiser Pays For

The man who pays money for advertising needs a cheerful philosophy to sustain him. He needs nerve and faith and patience. The time goes and the money goes, and he returns linger.

Advertising is the greatest force in modern business, but it takes nerve to use it. It is hard for an advertiser to realize what it is he pays for. He draws his check for the $4,000 page, and the page doesn't look as if it were worth 30 cents. It is hard to project the imagination into a million homes and see the advertisement doing its work.

The advertiser doesn't pay for type and ink and paper. He pays for an effect in people's minds. It is as intangible as air and as permanent as steel beams. It is almost as imperishable as time.

Monuments crumble, bridges fall, mountains are disrupted; thought goes on forever. Teach a man a word, an idea, a fact, and he will never wholly lose it. Your investment in the minds and memories of the people is the safest thing you own.

The best asset of a business is a well known trademark. Do you realize what that means? It means that in the convolutions of the thousands or millions of human brains that trademark is indelibly impressed. You can't see it, but it is there, and it is property—you can capitalize it. It is worth more than you paid for it.—Advertising Experience.

Grocery Advertising.

The Philadelphia Record, which very often gives excellent information concerning advertising, recently gave a tip that some advertising managers may act upon with good results. "Grocery advertising," says the Record, "has still to reach the development of that of the department store. The main thing is to have a bargain to make a newspaper display. One grocer could not get rid of a stock of small oranges. He offered them in striking type at 40 cents a peck. They sold quickly. While he realized about as much as if they had been sold by the dozen, his store had the benefit of an effective advertisement." Some wise grocer, says Newspaperman, may take advantage of publicity and make a fortune.

Prefers Advertised Goods.

Advertising is a great force and a succession of accumulated impressions, and the greater number of people who are influenced by it are never known to have been reached. George Horace Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post, says, "I buy advertised articles by preference, but I never write to the advertisers." They do not all write letters and mention the name of the advertiser, but simply go and buy. We doubt if any one force, with the exception of the public school and the daily press, has done as much for the education of the human race as advertising, and the man who can so plan advertising work as to bring about large results is exercising professional ability of the highest order.—Profitable Advertising.

Looks Prosperous.

Appearances count for much in this world. A big advertisement costs money and looks like prosperity. There are many who prefer to deal with the prosperous.—Printers' Ink.

A Just Judge.

A funny story comes from the south, where the cynic had gone to spend a few of the cold days of January. While courting his way through Georgia he stopped off to see an old friend, and a jaunt through the country was the outcome of his visit. It happened that this friend was quite prominent in politics in the vicinity, and as they trudged down the road an old dorky approached and saluted them cheerfully.

"Mornin', jedge," began old Sam.

"Howdy?"

"Say, jedge, I's like to be on de next ticket for justice av de peace."

continued Sam.

"You a judge?" replied my friend.

"Why, what do you know about de law?"

"Mos' everything."

"Well, now, Sam, if we should elect you and a man was brought before you charged with committing suicide what would your judgment be?"

This caused Sam some deep meditation, and after a considerable wait he replied:

"Well, under de circumstances, I guess I'd make him support his wife."

KILLED BY A TRAIN.

Yet the Death of William Good May be Murder, Suicide or Accident--The Body Was Found By Railway Track Late Saturday Night.

William Good, aged 33, single, was killed by a train at Pataskala Saturday night, and there is yet a question whether the cause of death was murder, suicide or accidental.

There are circumstances which point to either theory, and it may never be definitely known exactly how the unfortunate man met his death.

Good was employed on the section at Pataskala, and had been boarding in the village with a woman named Boyer, and he was notified by her on Saturday morning that he would have to leave. He went to Hebron in the afternoon and there met his brother, George Good, and the two took a glass of beer. This is all that William drank as far as is known. At the time he was with his brother he is said to have remarked that he was tired of life as he had had more than his share of troubles. At this time he showed his brother a roll of bills, containing between $35 and $40. At 5:20 Good took an interurban car for Etna, and from there went to Pataskala about two miles distant. He was seen in Pataskala during the evening with some companions, who never fore a good reputation in the community, and by some is said to have been intoxicated. About 9:30 his mangled body was found about 60 feet from the track, and about a hundred yards from the station. He had been struck by a train, his head mashed and his body terribly broken. He was last seen walking along the track, and it is now a question how he got in front of the train which killed him. He may have been drunk and accidentally stepped in front of the engine; he may have thrown himself under the wheels, or yet again he may have been thrown under the train to hide the crime of robbery, as there was only $1.40 in change found on his person when discovered.

As soon as Coroner C. F. ODD FELLOWS

WENT TO HANOVER SUNDAY ON A SPECIAL CAR

To Assist in Observation of the 85th Anniversary of Founding of the Order.

Tuesday, April 26, is the 85th anniversary of Odd Fellows in the United States, and the event was appropriately celebrated by the members of Hanover and Newark lodges. About 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon, about 100 Odd Fellows and Rebekahs of this city boarded an interurban car and went down to Hanover, over the new Newark-Zanesville electric line, where they were met by a reception committee and escorted to the Odd Fellows hall of that place. Here a large number of Odd Fellows and Daughters of Rebekah had assembled. Friendly greetings were exchanged after which all formed in line and marched to the Presbyterian church, where Rev. Luther E. Spaid, of Newark, preached an excellent sermon on the covenant between Jonathan and David and the beauties of Odd Fellowship. Friendship, love and truth, the three great principles of the order, were touched upon briefly. Friendship is the basis of investigation and the increase of knowledge. Allusion was made to the membership of the Odd Fellows, which number one million, and the relief work carried on by the societies, over two and a half million of dollars being spent in this department last year.

The Newark Odd Fellows will observe the anniversary here Tuesday evening. The program for the evening was published in The Advocate last Friday.

MORTGAGE

ON UNITED BRETHREN CHURCH BURNED.

Membership in This Growing Church Has Been Doubled in the Past Four Years.

Sunday was a day long to be remembered by the members of the East Main Street United Brethren church. Just six years ago the church was dedicated and Sunday the mortgage was burned. While the smoke of the torch ascended the congregation joined heartily in singing "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

All subscriptions were to be made in cash in order that the balance might be started.

The people had a mind to give and when the money was counted there was enough and fifty dollars over. This amount and $25 subscribed to be paid in thirty days, will go toward freestone and carpeting the church.

The church is in a flourishing condition, having more than doubled its membership in the last four years.

AT A FUNERAL

Floor of the Church Gave Way and Two Hundred Persons Fell Into the Basement.

Wooster, Ohio, April 25.—During a funeral at Seville, 15 miles north of here, a panic occurred Sunday afternoon when the floor of the church gave way, precipitating the entire congregation into the cellar. The funeral ceremonies were being conducted over the body of Herbert Secrest, and the little church building was crowded. While the pastor was in the midst of his eulogy of the deceased the floor suddenly gave way, and all present, numbering at least 200, fell to the floor of the basement, 10 feet below.

Many of the congregation were bruised by the fall, and those in the vicinity of the casket when the floor gave way were thrown into a panic. All were finally rescued, some being severely hurt in the scramble to get away, but there were no fatalities.

THE Y. M. C. A.

ADDRESSED SUNDAY AFTERNOON BY PAUL C. MARTIN.

Music by Prof. Murdock, Blind Pianist—First M. E. Young Men Conduct the Next Meeting.

The address by Mr. Paul C. Martin at the men's meeting in Taylor hall, Sunday afternoon, was of the kind that appeals to an audience of men—clean, forceful and to the point.

As a basis for his discourse he took the old testament story of Benaiah, the son of Jehoida, who "went down and slew a lion in a pit on a snowy day."

Three elements entered into this struggle of Benaiah typical of the things against which the modern man wins or fails in the struggle of life.

His foe was mighty—the lion, King of beasts, the environment was decidedly against him—he fought in a pit; and the very air he breathed worked to his undoing—it was a snowy day.

So the young man of today faces a real and mighty foe—Peter put it thus: "Your adversary the devil, is as a roaring lion, walking about, seeking whom he may devour." There is no use trying to depreciate the power of evil and the tremendous strength it takes to resist the awful temptations that come to our modern city life.

Surrounded by companions in the shop, the office or on the street, who invite him to ruin many a man gives up—he says, "there is no use, he can't live right in such an environment." But Benaiah killed the lion though he had to battle with him in a pit.

Then again, men excuse their failure to do the right because, they say, "there is no spiritual life abroad to encourage them." "The world," they say, "is cold and heartless"—"who cares whether I go wrong or right?" But Benaiah fought on through all alone and in the chilling atmosphere of a "snowy" day.

This and much more given in an exceeding earnest and straightforward way made Mr. Martin's address one that is bound to enter into the moral make-up of those who heard him.

Prof. J. K. Murdock, though blind and therefore helpless, could not help but win the admiration of all by his mastery of piano and violin, and especially by his excellent singing of the difficult baritone solo, "Fear Not Ye, O Israel," by Dudley Buck.

Next Sunday the young men of the First M. E. church will have charge of the meeting. This will be the first in a series of such meetings to be conducted by the young men of the different churches. The general theme for these meetings will be, "The Career of Some Young Men of the Bible."

GUGEL

Who Will Wrestle Newhardt Next Saturday Night Has a Great Record.

Never in Jack Newhardt's career has a contest been of more importance to him than will be that next Saturday night.

C. F. Gugel his opponent, has been a director in physical training for 10 years, was wrestling instructor for the Olympic A. C. of San Francisco in 1892-93, and won the welterweight gold medal tournament at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo.

The wrestling game was never in great favor as at present, and this is due to the straightforward and honorable methods employed by Mr. Newhardt.

He is the sole manager of the matches in which he appears, and no saloon or other side graft benefits in any way from a patronage of this great sport. He is thoroughly honest and nothing but first class contests will be put on by him, and he deserves and should receive the support and encouragement of all who enjoy an exhibition of physical power and development, with the added interest of a contest, the result of which are so important as the one next Saturday night.

The tickets for the match are now on sale, and photographs of the contests are now on exhibition at the Stevens cigar store, on the east side of the square.

WAS THE DEATH OF GEORGE JACOB CROTZER.

Zanesville's Most Prominent Tile Man Succumbs to heart Disease Sunday Midnight.

Zanesville, April 25.—George Jacob Crotzer, more familiarly known to all Zanesville residents as "Jake" Crotzer, died very suddenly at midnight, Sunday, at his home, 930 Linden avenue after a 20-minute illness. Dr. E. C. Brush, the family physician, pronounced heart disease as the cause of death.

Mr. Crotzer had been in the best of health and had not suffered from any complications of any kind whatever. He went to bed Sunday night after eating as hearty a supper as usual. He did not complain in the least, and it was thought that he was in his usual health and spirits. At 29 minutes before midnight he awoke and his wife, who is a light sleeper, was also awakened. Mr. Crotzer was breathing heavily and could not speak a word. Realizing that her husband was dangerously ill, the family was immediately aroused by the wife, and Dr. Brush was called by telephone. Before the physician could reach the bedside of the stricken man death had ensued.
